

Credo Reference is a Citable Resource

Credo Reference is a research starting point for students looking for background information to inform their topic. With millions of articles pulled from hundreds of books, Credo is a general knowledge database providing articles, images, charts, maps and other materials on thousands of topics. Every article in Credo contains a citation, making it simple to include Credo content and images into any project.

Anatomy of the eye, miniature from the Treaty on the Eye by Al-Mutadibid, Arabic manuscript, Egypt 13th Century
from Bridgeman Images: DeAgostini Library

Credit: Anatomy of the eye, miniature from the Treaty on the Eye by Al-Mutadibid, Arabic manuscript, Egypt 13th Century / De Agostini Picture Library / Bridgeman Images

Description: Anatomy of the eye, miniature from the Treaty on the Eye by Al-Mutadibid, Arabic manuscript, Egypt 13th Century. Artwork-location: Cairo, National Library

Copyright: Out of copyright

Keywords: decorative arts and crafts; miniatures; medicine; human anatomy; ophthalmology; history of medicine; al-mutadibid; eye; manuscript; treaty; century; national library

Related Credo Articles

- Autopsy, miniature from the Liber Notabilium by Guido da Vigevano
In Bridgeman Images: DeAgostini Library
Credit: Autopsy, miniature from the Liber Notabilium by Guido da Vigevano / De Agostini Picture Library / The Bridgeman Art Library Description: Aut
81 words from Bridgeman
- Doll showing the anatomy of the human body (Ivory)
In Bridgeman Images: The Bridgeman Art Library
Artist: German School, (17th century)
Location: Museo Nazionale Dell' Arte Sanitaria, Rome, Italy Credit: Doll showing the anatomy of the human body
66 words from Bridgeman

Search other sites

- Library Catalog
- Gale virtual reference library
- Oxford English Dictionary
- Wall Street Journal
- Alexander Street Press: Dance in Video
- ArtStor
- DK Eyewitness Series

Citation Box:

APA Chicago Harvard MLA

Anatomy of the eye, miniature from the Treaty on the Eye by Al-Mutadibid, Arabic manuscript, Egypt 13th Century. (2014). In Bridgeman Images (Ed.), Bridgeman images. London, UK: Bridgeman. Retrieved from https://search.credoreference.com/content/entry/bridgemandeag/anatomy_of_the_eye_miniature_from_the_treaty_on_the_eye_by_al_mutadibid_arabic_manuscript_egypt_13th_century/0

Footer:

Terms of use Privacy policy Contact About Credo Reference Librarian Admin

©2017 Copyright Credo Reference. All rights reserved.

<http://search.credoreference.com>

Why should I use and cite Credo?

1. Much of the content is authored

When you hear that you shouldn't cite encyclopedias, it is because often many articles in encyclopedias are not authored. However, Credo contains hundreds of thousands of authored articles. There are two types of authors in Credo: authors who wrote the whole book and authors who wrote specific articles in a book. In Credo, the article-authors are displayed in the lower right hand corner of the articles. They're also in the citations. When you see an author displayed, remember to cite their work!

 Copyright © 2016 by Visible Ink Press

APA Chicago Harvard MLA

The doctrine of discovery (destruction). (2016). In Y. W. Dennis, A. Hirschfelder, & S. R. Flynn. Native American almanac: more than 50,000 years of the cultures and histories of indigenous peoples. Canton, MI: Visible Ink Press. Retrieved from https://search.credoreference.com/content/entry/vipnative/the_doctrine_of_discovery_destruction/0

*Authors listed in citation

The book authors/editors aren't displayed in the lower right hand corner but they are in the citations and they're also displayed in the book information at the bottom of each article. Every book in Credo has a unique landing page with information about that book. Look for a preface or appendix with more information about the authors or contributors there. Most of them are professors/academics.

Contributors to the Volume and their Entries

from The Elgar Companion to Feminist Economics

Aerni, April Laskey Department of Business, Economics, and Management, Nazareth College of Rochester
USA Macroeconomics

Albelda, Randy Department of Economics, University of Massachusetts
Boston USA Income Distribution; Marxist Political Economics; Welfare Reform

Anderson, Donna M. Department of Economics, University of Wisconsin
La Crosse, USA Tax Policy

Aslaksen, Iulie Statistics Norway
Norway Gross Domestic Product

Avin, Rose-Marie Department of Economics, University of Wisconsin
Eau Claire, USA International Economics

Badgett, Lee Department of Economics, University of Massachusetts
Amherst, USA Sexual Orientation

Editor(s): Janice Peterson , Margaret Lewis

Edition: 1st

Articles: 102

Images: 1

People: 8

EDWARD ELGAR Publishing

Edward Elgar Publishing © Janice Peterson and Margaret Lewis, 1999

*Book authors' academic backgrounds listed

2. Credo is written and reviewed by experts in their academic fields

“Peer-reviewed” is a term that students look for when vetting academic content and it is generally applied to journal articles. The content in Credo's database does not come from journals, but much of it is reviewed by peers in the publishing process. The content in Credo is chosen by our editorial team because it's “academic” in nature. Since it is edited/published by a scholarly association, much of it is also “Peer-reviewed.” How can you tell? Look at the citation of an article in Credo. If there's an author and an editor, the article was likely written by the author and reviewed by the editor. If there are two authors, they're likely peers who wrote the article together or who reviewed each other's work.

Search the book... ← Previous Article Next Article →

Handy Answer: Native American Almanac: More Than 50,000 Years of the Cultures and Histories of Indigenous Peoples

From ancient rock drawings to today's urban living, the Native American Almanac: More Than 50,000 Years of the Cultures and Histories of Indigenous Peoples traces the rich heritage of indigenous people. It is a fascinating mix of biography, pre-contact and post-contact history, current events, Tribal Nations histories, enlightening insights on environmental and land issues, arts, treaties, languages, education, movements, and more.

Author(s): Yvonne Wakim Dennis, Arlene Hirschfelder, Shannon Rothenberger Flynn

Edition: 1st
Articles: 358
Images: 343
People: 465

*Multiple academic authors and editors

3. There are primary source materials in Credo Reference

The content in Credo is mostly reference or background material, but there is lots of primary source material in Credo. Not sure if content you're reading is primary source? Check if the article itself provides context. Or page down to the bottom of the page where there is a section about the book or collection and click on the "Browse" drop-down and click on "Headings" or "Table of Contents"; sometimes there's a preface or appendix that can provide more information about what type of information is available in the book. When in doubt, ask a librarian.

List of Documents

from Encyclopedia of the Vietnam War: A Political, Social, and Military History

1. Ho Chi Minh: Speech at the Tours Congress, December 1920
2. Ho Chi Minh: Open Letter to Léon Archimbaud, January 15, 1923
3. Ho Chi Minh: Appeal Made on the Occasion of the Founding of the Communist Party, February 18, 1930
4. Ho Chi Minh: Letter from Abroad, June 6, 1941
5. President Franklin D. Roosevelt: Memorandum to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, January 24, 1944 [Excerpts]
6. Charles Taussig: Memorandum of Conversation with President Franklin D. Roosevelt by the Adviser on Caribbean Affairs, March 15, 1945 [Excerpt]
7. State Department Division of European Affairs: Draft Memorandum for President Harry S. Truman, April 20, 1945
8. State Department Division of Far East Affairs: Draft Memorandum for President Harry S. Truman, April 21, 1945
9. Joseph Grew, Acting Secretary of State: Telegram to Ambassador Jefferson Caffery in France, May 9, 1945
10. Joseph Grew, Acting Secretary of State: Telegram to Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley in Chungking, China, June 7, 1945 [Excerpt]
11. U.S. State Department: Paper on U.S. Postwar Policy toward Asia and the Pacific, June 22, 1945 [Excerpts]
12. President Harry S. Truman: Telegram to Generalissimo Jiang Jieshi, Transmitted via Ambassador to China Patrick J. Hurley, August 1, 1945

Editor(s): Spencer C. Tucker
Edition: 2nd
Articles: 1,638
Images: 589
People: 1,050

ABC-CLIO

ABC-CLIO Copyright 2011 by ABC-CLIO, LLC

*List of Primary Source documents in Credo ebook

4. It was used in your paper to prove a point

If you used content you found in Credo to prove a point you made in your paper, be sure to properly cite it in your paper.

5. You have included a quotation or an image

Credo contains a ton of material that will supplement your argument, including thousands of images. We encourage you to use our images, maps, charts and graphs for your research, but always remember you must also provide a citation for its inclusion. Find that citation on the bottom of every Credo article.

5. Bibliometrics

If you're still not sure that content in Credo is citable, consider this citation analysis of these Credo books in Google Scholar which shows that articles in these books are being cited in published journal articles.

A random sampling of Credo books and the times they're cited in Google Scholar.

Handbook of Rural Studies

Cited by 227

Time Saver Standards for Architectural Design

Cited by 13

Cambridge Encyclopedia of Child Development

Cited by 45

The New Dictionary of Cultural Literacy

Cited by 321

The Penguin Dictionary of Psychology

Cited by 2941

The Dictionary of Human Geography

Cited by 914

The Harvard Dictionary of Music

Cited by 1751

- Google Scholar citations taken 12/1/2017

What type of content should not be cited?

Dictionary and thesaurus entries should not be cited unless you're making a point about the provenance of a word or synonyms of a term in your paper. If you are using the dictionary to simply define a word or find a synonym, a citation is not needed. Some encyclopedia entries, which don't offer much more than an A-Z list of terms with definitions, also do not need to be cited.

Credo Reference: Use it. Cite it.

Credo Reference offers so much more than basic definitions. The content is robust, rich, filled with images and data that can be used to bolster any project - and it includes full citations.